“Drugs that are unused or expired should be retired”

- Over the past decade-and-a-half, the number of teen and young adult (ages 12-25) new abusers of prescription painkillers such as oxycodone (OxyContin) or hydrocodone (Vicodin) has grown five-fold (from 400,000 in the mid-eighties to 2 million in 2000).
- New misusers of tranquilizers such as diazepam (Valium) or alprazolam (Xanax) went up nearly 50 percent in one year (700,000 in 1999 to 1 million in 2000). These medication are normally used to treat anxiety or tension.
